the 2021 capitol hill riot marked a watershed moment when the old world of factbased systems of representation was briefly overwhelmed by the emerging hyper individual politics of aestheticized emotion in the trump effect in contemporary art and visual culture kit messham muir and uro□ cvoro analyse the aesthetics that have emerged at the core of 21st century politics and which erupted at the us capitol in january 2021 looking at this event s aesthetic dimensions through such aspects as qanon white resentment and strongman authoritarianism they examine the world wide historical trends towards ethno nationalism and populism that emerged following the end of the cold war in 1989 and the dawning of the current post ideological age building on their ground breaking research into how trauma emotion and empathy have become well worn tropes in contemporary art informed by conflict messham muir and cvoro go further by highlighting the ways in which art can actively disrupt an underlying drift in society towards white supremacism and ultranationalism utilising their outsiders perspective on a so called american phenomenon and rejecting american exceptionalism their theorising of the trump effect rejects the idea of trump as a political aberration but as a symptom of deeper and longer term philosophical shifts in global politics and society as theorists of contemporary art and visual culture messham muir and cvoro explore the ways in which these features of the trump effect operate through aesthetics in the intersection of politics and contemporary art and provide valuable insight into the current political context over the last sixty years administrators on college campuses nationwide have responded to black campus activists by making racial inclusion and inequality compatible this bold argument is at the center of matthew johnson s powerful and controversial book focusing on the university of michigan often a key talking point in national debates about racial justice thanks to the contentious gratz v bollinger 2003 supreme court case johnson argues that um leaders incorporated black student dissent selectively into the institution s policies practices and values this strategy was used to prevent activism from disrupting the institutional priorities that campus leaders deemed more important than racial justice despite knowing that racial disparities would likely continue johnson demonstrates that these administrators improbably saw themselves as champions of racial equity what johnson contends in undermining racial justice is not that good intentions resulted in unforeseen negative consequences but that the people who created and maintained racial inequities at premier institutions of higher education across the united states firmly believed they had good intentions in spite of all the evidence to the contrary the case of the university of michigan fits into a broader pattern at elite colleges and universities and is a cautionary tale for all in higher education as matthew johnson illustrates inclusion has always been a secondary priority and as a result the policies of the late 1970s and 1980s ushered in a new and enduring era of racial retrenchment on campuses nationwide
